GIEBEL'S CLARENDON TEAM MEETS REX A. C.

The best amateur baseball game of the season will undoubtedly be seen today when the Rex A. C. players of Clarendon, Va., at the latter grounds, Clarendon, Va., at 3 p. m. There has always existed great rivalry between these two organizations, and both are out to win. The Clarendon A. C. has approved plans for the erection of a covered grandstand, which will have a seating capacity of 500. The building will be under way the 15th. The Clarendon team has a number of Washington supporters from the suburbs, when they find that they will be furnished, upon completion of this stand, comfortable seats, out of the sun.

Ty Cobb Announces that He Will Retire in 1920

St. Louis, May 10.—Ty Cobb announced his retirement from baseball, not during this present hour, but at the end of the 1920 season. "I won't be a has-been so I am going to retire in two more years," said Cobb in his interview printed here. "I'd rather stop out with cheers than jeers, step out before I am forced out and it's about time for some one to fill my shoes anyway. At the end of the 1920 season I will celebrate my fifteenth full season as a major leaguer. That's long enough for anyone. "The game has been kind to me. It gave me an opening to fix myself for the remainder of my life financially and I won't forget the pitchers who I named me with three or four fans who cheered this stunt. I feel my ankles stiffening and the arm going back a yard or two on the throws. A fellow can't last forever and I don't intend to stick around as long as Hans Wagner, Cy Young and some of the other boys."

Kennel Club's Show.

Twelve Horses in Preakness

The Richest Thoroughbred Event in Added Money Decided Wednesday.

Baltimore, May 10.—The Preakness, $25,000 added, a race of one mile and a furlong for three-year-olds and the richest thoroughbred event in added money that will be decided on American tracks all season, will be renewed at Pimlico on Wednesday. It will have a gross value of upward of $20,000 for there are expected to be smart colts and fillies—geldings may not start in the Preakness—eligible to start and of these some twelve or fifteen have given unmistakable evidence that they are good enough to take part in the country's greatest three-year-old event. The starting fee is $500 and is one of the perquisites of the winner. In pursuance of a practice adopted for the first time, the Maryland Jockey Club has provided rewards for the first four horses at the finish—$3,000 to the second, $2,000 to the third and $1,000 to the fourth, all to be deducted from the purse of the winner. However, with twelve starters, the winner's compensation will be $22,000, the full added money value of the race.

Barring the geldings, Billy Kelly and Be Frank and St. Bernard and the Ashland Oaks winner, Regalo, which seems to be something of a favorite, the Preakness will attract the best of the three-year-olds. It is questionable, indeed, whether another such race will be staged all season. The great horses are ready because they are good enough to take part in the country's greatest three-year-old event. The starting fee is $500 and is one of the perquisites of the winner. In pursuance of a practice adopted for the first time, the Maryland Jockey Club has provided rewards for the first four horses at the finish—$3,000 to the second, $2,000 to the third and $1,000 to the fourth, all to be deducted from the purse of the winner. However, with twelve starters, the winner's compensation will be $22,000, the full added money value of the race.

The most prominent of the potential starters—horses whose recent achievements on the tracks have brought them into the racing spotlight—are, of course, Vindex, Eternity, Dumbone, Sir Barton and Tarentia. These are the Preakness candidates that will deserve the greatest consideration in the betting circles. Eternity, Vindex and Sir Barton are confident favorites from Louisville, where they went a fortnight back to start in the Kentucky Derby, and they are trained to the minute by the famous trainer, Tom S. Mehan. Eternity, the juvenile champion of 1918, is regarded by many of the shrewdest of American trainers as the greatest three-year-old colt on the continent.

Vindex, the half American half British sire was the English thoroughbred champion of 1917, his dam the American mare Beaufort, a daughter of Watercress and Hamburg Belle—champion of the stable of Harry Payne Whitney. He is considered by James Rowe to be as clever a three-year-old as anything since Sir Barton. Vindex is the property of the proprietor of the Brooklands stud and one of the most successful breeders of thoroughbreds in the United States in twenty years.

COLUMBIA COUNTRY CLUB IS AFTER GOLF TOURNAMENT

By FRANK H. YOUNG.

The Herald has been dwelling on the fact that Washington, although one of the busiest golf communities of the East, has never been given any recognition by the United States Golf Association when it was handing out its tournament assignments, Philadelphia being the nearest to Washington the national championship has ever come.

The fact that neither of its two big courses—Chevy Chase and Columbia—quite came up to championship specifications has no doubt been the main reason why its claims have been overlooked. But things are different now, or soon will be, as the Columbia country club has "thrown its hat in the ring" and is out after next year's titular event with the idea in view will, within a few days, start to work getting its course into championship shape.

The green committee of the Columbia club and first vice president of the national body, is behind the movement and his plans for improving the course with the view to making a bid for the big event have been unanimously approved by the board of governors of the club.

Robert White, president of the Professional Golfers' Association, and Walter S. Travis, one of the best golf-course architects in the country, have been engaged to make the necessary improvements to the course.

At the present time the course is about the requisite length (5,400 yards), when the plates are far back on the tees, and no change is planned in this direction. Of course, all of the changes have not yet been decided upon, but work on several holes has already been started or will be started within a day or so. The eighteenth green is being radically changed from its former flat character to a rolling one on which there will be a series of undulations, which will furnish a supreme test in putting. The sixteenth green will probably be raised, while the seventh will be made a rolling one.

It is Columbia's plan to get its course into such shape and to have it so scientifically laid out that the national body cannot overlook its claims for recognition. According to a precedent established several years ago by the U. S. G. A., the titular event of the year will be the "Victory" club championship, its time-honored strict eligibility rules being broadened so that golfers all over the world may be invited to compete. All of the local clubs will be invited to co-operate. They will be asked to name committees to assist the Columbia officials with the "thousand and one" details, the idea being to make the event a "never-to-be-forgotten" one in the annals of District golf, with all of the local organizations sharing in the glory. A tournament smacking of an international nature, held in the Capital of America, would surely be appropriate and this is exactly what Columbia officials hope to bring about. Here's hoping.
